Study That Sticks Planner

Think of this planner as your study coach.

Every page tells you what to do, right where you do it.

1 THE COACH LEADS

Follow the steps.

Do what each one asks.

→

2 YOU PRACTICE

One move at a time.

Each page gives one habit.
Repeat it until it's easy.

3 YOU TAKE OVER

Make it yours.

Change what doesn't fit.
Skip, move or add pages.

COACH LEADS — YOU LEAD

A good coach steps back as you get stronger. The goal: you run your own study plan.

My starting line

Fill this in before you turn the page.

I START ON _____ MY TEST DATE _____ WEEKS TO GO _____

MY GAME PLAN About 30 minutes, most days

MY STUDY TIME _____ MY STUDY SPOT _____

IF I MISS A DAY, I'LL _____

Deciding when and where ahead of time makes it easier to follow through.
About 30 minutes on most days helps you remember more than one long cram.

SIGNED _____

Every month, start a fresh plan.

At the start of each month you study, fill in a new set of study calendar pages.
Your free times and big dates change, so your plan should too.

Six study habits

Every step on your study pages uses one of these habits.
The models show what your notes could look like. Bars stand for your own words.

Scan to see all six done

1 Close the book
You may know it as blurting

Write everything you remember with the book closed. Then open it and add what you missed.

MODEL

Levels of decontamination, book closed:

\+ missed it!

Why it matters: Pulling it from memory is what makes it stick. Rereading only feels like learning.

2 Space it out
You may know it as "2357"

Bring each topic back over several days, a few days apart, not all in one night.

MODEL

One topic, three times this week:

M	T	W	Th	F	Sa	Su
Decon.	Decon.			Decon.

Why it matters: Coming back after a few days, as you start to forget, makes it last longer.

3 Check how sure
You may know it as traffic-light rating

Rate how sure you are before you check. Then check.

MODEL

Disinfecting tools: how sure am I?

☹ 1 | 😐 2 | ☺ 3

Shaky: back in 3 days

Why it matters: Feeling sure isn't the same as knowing. Rating first shows what to study.

4 Explain it out loud
You may know it as the Feynman technique

Say or write it simply, like you're telling a client. Where you get stuck is what to study.

MODEL

Telling a client why I disinfect:

Why it matters: If you can say it simply, you understand it, not just the words.

5 Mix topics
You may know it as interleaving

Take turns between topics instead of finishing one before starting the next.

MODEL

Safety topics taking turns:

M	T	W	Th	F	Sa	Su
Decon.	SDS	Decon.	Tools	SDS	Decon.

Why it matters: The test mixes topics too. Mixing helps you tell look-alikes apart.

6 Name the gap
You may know it as a wrong-answer log

Write down what you were sure of that turned out wrong. It comes back first.

MODEL

I was sure of this line:

Not yet. The right version:

\+

→ back first on Thursday

Why it matters: The mistakes you were sure about are the ones that come back. Fix them first.

Receipts: Close the book and space it out: Dunlosky et al. 2013; Cepeda et al. 2006. Sure but wrong: Metcalfe 2017. Mix topics: Rohrer and Taylor 2007.

My practice tests

Tips to use, plus a log of every test

Practice exam tips

Use these every time you take a practice test.

1. Cover the answers. Answer in your head first.
2. What is it really asking? Which topic, which area?
3. Cross out the ones you know don't fit, then choose.
4. Stuck? Mark it, move on, come back. Use the flag button if your guide's tutorial shows one.
5. If you have a reason to change an answer, change it.
6. Before you check, mark each answer: sure or not sure.
7. Sure but wrong? Circle it. Study that topic first.

MY PRACTICE TEST LOG

After each test, think about what you learned and what you'll do next.
Use your calendar to plan your next steps.

Date	Score	Areas I missed most

Score: write it the way your practice test shows it (like 42/60 or 70%).

Receipts: Tip 5: Kruger, Wirtz and Miller 2005; Bauer, Kopp and Fischer 2007 (college and medical-school exams). Tip 7: Metcalfe 2017.

Find your exam's official guide

Why? Your guide is the official word on what's on your test and how much each area counts. Everything you plan in this planner starts from it, so you study what's actually on the test.

DIRECTIONS

1. Go to your state board's website.
   Search "[your state] board of cosmetology." Use the official .gov site.
2. Open your exam guide.
   It may be called Candidate Information Bulletin, Candidate Handbook or Exam Information.
3. Check that it's the newest one.
   Guides change. Look for the date on the cover.
4. Fill in My exam at a glance below.
   The test facts are near the front of the guide.

Can't find it? Ask your instructor or school office.

My exam map

Why? Your map shows how much of the test each area is, and how sure you feel about it. That's how you'll pick what to study first.

DIRECTIONS

1. Copy your guide's outline. Write each area and its %. Biggest 2 go in tall boxes.
2. Rate how sure you feel. 1 not yet, 2 shaky, 3 got it. Next week, use the next box.
3. List each area's topics. The smaller items under each heading.

Where to start

Why? The grid below shows what to study first and most: big, shaky areas.

My study priorities

You'll come back to this grid until test day.

DIRECTIONS, CONT.

4 Write each area in its box, in pencil.

ROWS · LEFT Big = 10% or more of your exam (see your map). Small = under 10%.

COLUMNS · TOP Shaky = rated 1 or 2. Good = rated 3.

Each week, re-rate. If a rating changes, erase the area and write it in its new box.

	SHAKY rated 1 or 2	GOOD rated 3
BIG 10% or more
SMALL under 10%

Receipts: Spacing: Cepeda et al. 2006; Latimier et al. 2021. Rating how sure you are: Janssen and Lazonder 2024.
